

HENRY BERGER (1853); shipped Wednesday, March 30, 1853

Sacred Heart of Mary, R.C., Church of the (Rev. J.B. Cattani, S.J., Pastor)
Paradise, Adams County, Pennsylvania

[Excerpt from:] "Berger's Organ Factory," The (Baltimore, Md.) Sun 31, no. 81 (Thursday, August 19, 1852): 1; hereafter S.

Another instrument, the case of which measures 12 feet in height, 9 feet in width, and 7 in depth, is progressing rapidly for the Protestant church at New Brighton, Pennsylvania, Rev. Jos. P. Taylor, rector. It will contain 14 stops, and develop the Grecian style of architecture. One for a Catholic church in Troy, N. York, contains two rows of keys, with pedal and swell; another for a church at Blackiston, near Boston, promises to be a very fine instrument, the case measuring 18 feet in height, 11 in width, and 8 in depth, and displaying the prominent features of Grecian architecture. Mr. Berger is also engaged in the construction of an organ for the "Church of the Sacred Heart of Mary," Rev. J. B. Cattani, S. J., pastor, situated at Paradise, Adams county, Penn. The case is of the Roman style, very imposing in appearance, the music having one row of keys on stops, with pedal, &c.

[Except from:] "Large Church Organs," S 32, no. 116 (Thursday, March 31, 1853): 1.

The Catholic Church of the Sacred Heart of Mary, Adams county, Pa., Rev. J. B. Cattani, S. J., pastor, will soon be enlivened and adorned with a very superior organ, which Mr. Berger forwarded on yesterday. This instrument, although of moderate size, yet contains 10 stops, and power sufficient for an effective choir; besides, in point of melody and the general voicing, is equal to those of the larger class.