Dear Sirs:

As you know we are furnishing an organ for the United Brethren Church, Quincy, Pennsylvania, and we understand that you are also building for them some church furniture and would like for us to send a wood sample of the console.

The organ the church is buying is one that we had already built for a church in South Africa, but due to war conditions we were unable to ship same so the church in Quincy took advantage of this and bought the organ. The console is walnut waxed, in other words, there was no finished part at all but just the plain walnut with two or three coats of wax on it. This I think should give you a definite idea as to the finish, and we do not have any other sample which we could send along.

Please get out the following:

Organ #7083 formerly built for the Dutch Reformed Church, Germiston, South, Transvaal, South Africa, has been sold to the United Brethren Church, Quincy, Pa. As you know, this will take a new motor and if a motor can not be added to the existing blower, a different motor blower and generator must be furnished. A good used outfit will be satisfactory if same is painted so that it will look new. This order is to be gotten out as soon as possible. Current specifications: 115 volt, single phase, 60 cycles.
