If Secretary of State John Hay has the proper degree of a self respect, he will not continue any longer to President Roosevelt's cabinet than it may be necessary to write his resignation, because of the affront offered him by the president in transmitting the Jewish petition to Russia, over the head of Secretary Hay, a professional disclaimer having been issued. Secretary Hay's official rank was ignored and the document was given to the press by the president direct, doubtless for the reason that the president was aware that Mr. Hay did not approve of the sending of the petition to the czar, and that for the reason that the czar's ambassador had indicated that the act would be regarded by his government as an interference with their internal policy, which would be resisted. But the president, determined to act, left his premier or alter ego, and transmitted the petition to our representative, at St. Petersburg, direct, the president badly putting his feet into it. In both sides of the affair. In this great national petition vehicle for advice to Russia how to conduct her affairs in the United States is virtually committed to an interference with the internal affairs of our nation. The president demanded it as a matter of humanity, and acted, even though impudently, as if he had been given a license for getting rid of Mr. Hay, from his assumed almost presidential prerogative, even back to former president McKinley's administration, and especially so during the war when making our government, in so far as his power, an adjunct and obedient ally of the European government which finally obliterated the struggling Dutch republic by its freedom, to our everlasting disgrace. He is said Secretary Hay has lived long almost in a monarchial style, in his position and tried while premier being flattered by dominating authority, not democracy. Should Secretary Hay leave the cabinet it is to be feared that Senator Lodge may be his successor, and no improvement over Mr. Hay. The republicans have no objection to replace Hay with.

NEW ORGAN DEDICATED

FINE NEW INSTRUMENT AT ZION LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Interesting Services Held Sunday Morning and Evening. Organ Dedicated by the Choir and on the New Organ.

The handsome new pipe organ just installed in the Zion Lutheran church at a cost of about $2,000 was dedicated Sunday, July 12, with special services in the morning and evening. Special music by the choir was a feature of both services, and Prof. Hunsicker presided at the new organ, whose rich tones and grand harmonies were most effectively displayed under his skillful touch. Very large congregations were present at both services, including a number of visitors from neighboring congregations and many local musicians present to hear the new organ.

At the morning service the sermon was preached by Prof. Leo Mees, of Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, and at this service the formal dedication of the instrument was symbolized. At the evening service, the sermon was preached by the Rev. H. P. Doernum, of Bliss Island, Ill., and Prof. Mees also delivered a brief address in English, and the musical feature was made especially prominent in this service. The new organ at Zion church was built by the John H. Sola Co., of Fremont, Ohio, and is a beautiful instrument in appearance, harmonizing perfectly with the interior architecture and decorative scheme of the handsome new church. Moreover, it is one of the most modern and perfect instruments in northeast Wisconsin, embodying many improvements in organ construction and being of unusual capacity and richness of tone. The instrument has a two-manual and pedal organ. It is located in the gallery over the main entrance to the church. The organ features the following: The instrument is 17 feet wide, 11 feet deep and 22 feet high. It contains 16 speaking stops, 9 in the great organ, 7 in the small organ, and 3 in the pedal organ. It has 1,200 pipes, 7 in the various parts of the organ are combined, with 7 mechanical and 4 pedal movements, making a grand total of 16 stops and applications, the total number of pipes being 1,200.

A prominent feature in the construction of the organ is the extended action, the console being placed in front and at some distance from the organ to permit the organist to look and direct the choir. Lead pipes run from every key, draw stops, etc., under a platform to the front of the organ, and the organ is provided with a grand total of 16 stops and applications, the total number of pipes being 1,200.

The wind-chests throughout the organ are of a form invented and used exclusively by the John H. Sola Co., the builders, and have an advantage over the slide chest ordinarily employed. They are not affected by changes in the atmosphere, obviating the difficulty of borrowing when the full organ or when many pipes of any given stop are used.

The blowing apparatus consists of one large boiler and three feeders, operated by an electrical motor so placed in the tower in the rear of the organ, without hindrance, and the perfect blending of the whole into an ensemble and massive tone, which still lacks nothing in brilliancy, as well as in power.

Regarding the interior of the instrument, it can be said without qualification that the expenditure, here, is in every detail, however insignificant, here, has been carried to the highest attainable standard; that the instrument as a whole is one representative of the perfection to which the art of organ building has been advanced, and that the

WATCH FACTORY WORK

RESUMED THIS MORNING AT REMINGTON PLANT.

Employer's Wages Paid By Receiver on Order of Court and All Hands Return to Work—Factory in Full Operation.

In circuit court, late Saturday afternoon, Judge Goodland signed an order authorizing J. A. Hayes, receiver of the Remington Watch Co., to borrow $5,000 on mortgage notes for the purpose of paying the accrued wages of the 120 hands at the plant in order that operations might be resumed on this morning. The money was duly secured and all streams of wages paid this morning. The plant resumed operations with a full crew of three of the skilled hands who have taken job elsewhere did not report this morning, presumably waiting to see if the money was forthcoming. Aside for these few less than a dozen absences, the plant had a complete force of operatives when it started up this morning. The prospects for a satisfactory adjustment of the temporary financial difficulties of the Remington Watch Co., and the future success of the plant are very bright, which will be generally regarded as good news by all who would recognize the value of the watch factory permanently maintained.
