

Dismantling Zion Church Organ.

On Thursday evening two mechanics of the Haskell Organ Company, of Philadelphia, arrived in Allentown, and on Friday morning the work of dismantling Zion Reformed Church organ was begun. The entire present organ, save the case, will be removed. The general layman has no conception of the amount of material and complicated mechanics contained in a large three manual church organ. The large church auditorium is well scattered with material from the present organ. The workmen hope to have all removed by Saturday evening, so that service on Sunday, with the use of a small reed organ, may be held in the auditorium. Should this prove impossible, service will be held in the chapel

Haskell - dismantling old organ Zions
Church Allentown

Clipped By:
paul486
Nov 7, 2024