Miss Lillie Blauvelt to Sing at the North Baptist Church Organ Opening.

The North Baptist Church announce for their organ opening and concert, which occurs Thursday evening, October 24th, a program which is sure to please the music-loving people of Camden and vicinity. The talent includes the names of some of the best artists in the profession, among whom is the "Star of Sopranos," Mme. Lillian Blauvelt, of New York City — America's greatest and Camden's favorite.

Mme. Blauvelt will need no introduction to a Camden audience, as she has been heard in this city on several occasions and always meets with overwhelming success. The New York Musical Courier says of her: "She has the throat of a lark and she is indeed our little concert Patti, and not unlike the dive in her pretty, piquant personnel. Encores and again encores and storms of applause were her portion." She will sing "Nymphes et Sylvaïn," "Sicilian Vespers" and several other selections at the North Baptist Concert.

The contralto is Miss Annie E. Kelley, of St. Charles' Philadelphia, and the organists—Messrs. Frank J. O'Brien, of the Church of the Gesu, and Frederick Maxon, of the Central Congregational Church, are two of the best in Philadelphia. There will also be a full orchestra under the leadership of Edward A. Ketterer.

Cards of admission are $1 and may be had of John W. Cheney & Co., Third and Market streets, or L. H. Wilson, Fourth and Linden streets.
