ONE HUNDRED FIVE DOLLARS

BYRON W. PROCTOR
(Brook Cornwall)

A thousand miles away from me,
Tooting along on the stormy sea,
From bellow to bounding hollow bellow,
Like fierce snow on the stormy blizzard,
The gale of winter's tempestuous winds;
The strong main shake like quivering
roads;

The mighty cables and iron chains,
Which all earthly strength dis-
arms;

They scratch and they crack; and bears
Their natural, hard, proud strength disown;

Up and down—up and down!
From the base of the wave to the hil-
lions;

And generates the flashing and featherly
