

The spire of the new Cohocksink Presbyterian Church, at Franklin street and Columbia avenue, has just been finished, and the scaffolding which surrounded it has been entirely removed. This is one of the highest church spires in the city, and adds much to the beauty of the building. The main audience chamber will be completed in a few months. The congregation now worship in the lecture room, in the lower part of the structure.

The authorities of Dr. Alexander's Church, Fifth